

NEW YORKS WIN!

SCHARN CASE BEFORE THE JURY.

Coroner Bausch, in Summing Up, Points Out the Weak Spots in Story of Dead Girl's Brother.

GOLD TIDE FLOWS HERE FROM EUROPE.

Three Million Dollars' Worth Engaged for Steamers Sailing To-Morrow.

Coroner Bausch, before whom was held the inquest into the death of Katie Scharn, the murdered factory girl, charged the jury this afternoon after Fred Scharn, the brother, had refused to testify in the case.

Three witnesses were heard in the afternoon session. Then calls were made for Nettie Harris and her parents, but they had gone home after Scharn had been taken back to the Tombs. Why they did not wait to testify for the boy's interest after having been subpoenaed was not discovered.

In his charge to the jury Coroner Bausch said he thought Mr. Murphy was honest about his statement that Katie Scharn bought pearls on Saturday evening, still he believed he was mistaken. Concerning Scharn, the Coroner spoke in fair words, but he laid much stress on the improbability of his Yonkers trip, although he admitted it had not been disproved.

"If you believe the boy went there, you should not suspect him. It seems sure Miss Scharn was alive about 230."

IN SCHARN'S BEHALF.

The Coroner was interrupted here by a jurymen who asked that the proceedings be suspended until Mr. and Mrs. Kubin could be heard. A recess was taken and they were sent for. As the room cleared Miss Ella Conroy, the cashier in the grocery store where Murphy worked, called to Lawyer Friend.

"I want to testify," said she. "I was subpoenaed here by the Coroner, and I've not been asked to go on the stand. I will answer Miss Scharn did buy pearls on Saturday night. I know her. She paid me the five cents for them about 7 o'clock."

"I see how serious this is for Fred Scharn, and I want to tell what I know. At first I wouldn't say I knew Miss Scharn, for I dreamed to come to court, but I feel I must tell."

Miss Conroy is a pretty girl of about twenty and was in great earnest.

HIS LIPS SEALED.

Scharn was called to the witness-stand to-day, but at the direction of his counsel, Emanuel M. Friend, refused to testify.

It was one of the most striking incidents of the great murder mystery and the court thrilled with excitement.

Coroner Bausch, who had led it rested with him whether he would allow the suspicion against him or go forever in the shadow of the crime. He actually pleaded with the stolid lad, telling him it would be the noblest thing he could do to speak.

Nettie Harris, his sweetheart, listened to the speech with a flushed face and bright eyes.

But the lips of Fred Scharn remained sealed and he was taken back to the Tombs.

Coroner Bausch interrupted the proceedings at 1 o'clock and called:

"Frederick Scharn."

The boy looked at his lawyer, Mr. Friend.

"Keep still; don't speak or move."

Mr. Friend forced the boy back in his chair as he half rose.

Nettie Harris in her excitement rose to her feet and leaned forward.

CORONER'S PLEA.

"Frederick Scharn," continued the Coroner, "I have had you called before me, the Coroner, the jury, and the community, to find out who caused the death of your sister. You were the first person to find her body and to give public notice of the crime. You are now here as a witness exactly as any other witness have been, but I say frankly, suspicion hovers over you. Whether or not you can perhaps allay this suspicion by testifying, or whether you will let it remain on you forever, it does not cause grave results—rents with you. Your counsel tells you not to speak. I tell you it is the noblest thing you can do."

"You should testify. You are the one who can tell us most about the crime. You can go on the stand, and if you answer any questions would tend to degrade or intimidate you you need not answer. Will you do this for the sake of your sister and your community?"

"Don't answer! Sit still!" cried Mr. Friend.

"Take this prisoner to the city prison," roared the Coroner, as Scharn sat stolidly, though twisting his hands nervously. "I shall mention this in my charge to the jury."

The boy was led away and Nettie Harris smiled. Lawyer Friend was due with rage. "This is illegal," he shouted. "The Coroner has no right to put this boy in such a position."

Jury No. 6 leaned over to Jury No. 1. "That was an effort to railroad the boy," he said, and the other jurors nodded.

Recess was then taken while the courtroom was bustling with murmurs of disapproval at the effort to place young Scharn on the stand.

Scharn listened dispassionately to Detective McCauley's relation of the finding of Katie Scharn's body and the blood-stains on the window. Beyond one glance at Scharn as he was seated near Lawyer Friend, not one of the twelve jurors looked at the boy.

WASHINGTON FIRST OF ALL.

Heads List of Immortals in the Hall of Fame.

The officers of the Senate of New York University this afternoon finished their counting of the votes for eligible nominees for the Hall of Fame.

To-day the rulers and statesmen were taken up, finishing the different classes.

Of the thirty-seven names in the class only seven were selected, and three of those, Washington, Lincoln and Webster, received sufficient votes to place them at the head of the list of selected names, exceeding the large total of ninety-two votes, cast for Gen. Grant, at yesterday's meeting.

Every one of the ninety-seven votes, three being being absent, cast a vote for George Washington and thus made him the head of the list.

Charles E. Ackron, former owner of manager of the Tivoli, the notorious dive in West Thirty-fifth street, who is charged with assault by James Brown, a cabman, was arraigned in the afternoon and held for trial in 100 hall by Magistrate Connel.

CORONER'S JURY DOESN'T HOLD FRED SCHARN.

The jury in the Scharn inquest, after twenty-five minutes' deliberation, found that Katie Scharn, the murdered factory girl, came to her death at the hands of persons unknown. So the inquest-attorney's effort at the inquest to fasten the crime on the brother, Fred Scharn, results in failure.

POLAR EXPEDITION FROM BROOKLYN.

William Ziegler Will Fit Out Two Ships to Sail Next Summer.

William Ziegler, a well-known and wealthy citizen of Brooklyn, announced to-day that he would purchase two vessels, fully equipped and man them and send them in quest of the North Pole during the summer of 1901.

The expedition is to be in charge of Evelyn B. Baldwin, who was a companion of Lieut. Peary in his attempts to reach the pole in 1893 and 1894 and also a member of Walter Wellman's expedition.

It is Mr. Ziegler's ambition to be the means of discovering the North Pole. He intends to have one vessel remain in the Arctic regions while the other returns for supplies.

RICE WILL FILED FOR PROBATE.

Executors Get $80,000 in Cash for Benefit of Brother and Wife.

The will of the dead millionaire William M. Rice was filed for probate this afternoon in the office of the Surrogate. No petition was filed with the will and the value of the large estate is not known. The Rice Institute for the Advancement of Literature, Science and Art gets the bulk of the estate.

The will is dated Sept. 26, 1898, and the executor is Frederick A. Rice, of 29 Greene avenue, and William F. Harmon, of 672 Putnam avenue, Brooklyn.

Verheer is a clerk in the office of Swenson & Sons, where the checks for $50,000 and $25,000 were presented, and who is said to have been asked by Valer Jones to go into the deal of getting Rice's property.

The executors of the will are William M. Rice, Jr., John D. Bartine and James A. Baker, Jr.

In the cash of the will the executors get $80,000 for the benefit of the testator's brother, Frederick A. Rice, and his first wife, Charlotte.

The will also sets aside $10,000 for the benefit of the testator's sister, Minerva. Ten thousand dollars is also left for the use of his sister, Charlotte S. McKee, of Massachusetts.

The executors are to be recompensed for their services by 5 per cent. commission on the value of the estate.

All the residue of the estate is bequeathed to the William M. Rice Institute for the Advancement of Literature, Science and Art, of Houston, Tex.

THIEF SPRANG FROM A TRAIN.

Policeman Leaped After and Quickly Caught Him.

William Warren, a bicycle thief, arrested in Mount Vernon, jumped from a moving train after 1 o'clock this afternoon and escaped. Policeman Atwell, who had him in custody, sprang after him and struck on his back.

Atwell leaped after him. The train was going at thirty miles an hour, and the policeman fell flat, striking his face. He lay stunned for a moment, but was soon up and after the thief, who ran towards the woods near Melrose. The men disappeared, and neither had been heard from late this afternoon.

Mayor Ficks, of Mount Vernon, happened to be in the vicinity and saw the men jump. He took Warren's coat, which the latter had dropped, to the police, and had a general alarm sent out for prisoner and policeman.

The policeman caught his man after running a short distance and brought him to the Mount Haven station. Both prisoner and policeman were thoroughly shaken up by the jump and Atwell's face was cut.

QUAKERS HEAR COV. ROOSEVELT

He Tells Indiana Friends We Are Slow to Enter War.

GREENCASTLE, Ind., Oct. 12.—Gov. Roosevelt made his first stop at Plainfield, Ind., where he spoke to a large crowd gathered about a platform erected at a railroad station.

"I understand," he said, "that this community is composed largely of members of the Society of Friends, who stand for social and industrial virtue in a way that entitles them to the respect of all people."

"That the virtues and righteousness which they practice are the foundation of good government cannot be denied, and without them we would never have been able to make the republic what it is and must be."

"I am glad to address the members of the society that stood by President McKinley and gave their influence toward international arbitration at the Peace Conference at The Hague."

"It is not possible as yet for me to have advanced far enough to be able to settle all our difficulties peacefully by arbitration, but in every case we should avoid appeal to arms where possible, for we as a party are pledged to peaceful settlement until war becomes a last resort."

"We believe in being slow to enter upon war, but having entered upon it we believe in seeing it through. We believe we have a right to appeal to all powers of peace to stand with us in the Philippines."

"If you turn the islands over to the Talar bandits who have been fighting our brothers, sons and kindred, you turn them over to bloody chaos and anarchy."

BRYAN RUSHES THROUGH OHIO.

Tells Workmen at Toledo the Full Dinner Pa! Is Not All.

KENTON, O., Oct. 12.—Soon after W. J. Bryan's car arrived at Toledo from Saginaw a crowd of workmen on their way to work gathered and the candidate had to make a speech.

He talked to them in a conversational tone of voice, the manner of the speech creating the impression of a familiar chat. He told them that the Republican party seemed of the opinion that the full dinner pa! was a sufficient reply to all argument as well as to all demands.

He scouted the idea that it could be sufficient to meet the requirements of the laboring man because he said the laborer was not all appetite.

The Republican candidate forgot, he said, all about anthracite coal. He also warned them against what he considered the hateful influence of trusts and talked at some length on the tendency toward a change in our form of government, as manifested in our treatment of the Philippines and the Porto Ricans.

Mr. Bryan to-day announced that Mrs. Bryan would join him on the 27th inst. in New York and remain with him thereafter until the close of the campaign.

He said that after leaving New York and making the tour of West Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and New Jersey he would again return to the Empire State and probably make several speeches on the occasion of his second visit.

While the car was standing in the Toledo station Mayor Jones, of Toledo, called upon Mr. Bryan and they were in conference together for a few minutes.

It had been hoped that Mr. Jones would be able to accompany Mr. Bryan on his Ohio tour, but his other campaign engagements prevented him doing so.

CAT-LIKE DROP SAVED HIS LIFE.

Painter Fell Four Stories and Landed on All Fours.

Patrick J. Martin, of 1433 Third avenue, had been engaged to paint the apartment house at 37 East Twenty-seventh street. This morning he went there to make an estimate on the work, and while in the rear part of the house, on a ledge of the fourth story, he slipped and fell to a paved court below.

Martin struck on his hands and feet and when picked up was found to have escaped serious injury. He had a small scalp wound and was suffering from shock.

When taken to Bellevue Hospital Martin wanted to go home, but was told he had better remain, as internal injuries might develop.

The woman declares that she knew nothing whatever of the plot to kill King Humbert. She stated that she herself had never had any connection with the Anarchists.

Two brothers named Tusa, who conduct a saloon at Clinton avenue and Hoboken street, denied that their saloon was a rendezvous for Anarchists.

The hearing was adjourned to Monday next.
